

Press release Grisebach takes a step forward

In choosing Sarah Miltenberger as head of the department of Contemporary Art, Grisebach secures an influential addition to our staff: With experience in art dealing, and an excellent international network, Sarah Miltenberger comes from König Galerie, where she has been the Senior Director since 2015. Before that, Miltenberger has held positions at reputable galleries such as Carlier Gebauer, Galerie Zink, and Eigen & Art.

With this recruitment, Grisebach demonstrates devotion to the international contemporary art market and strengthens our already leading position. This is an important step in the implementation of our current corporate strategy. With this move, contemporary art will be equated to the cornerstone of the auction house – Modern Art. This is an explicit display of the internationality, future, and growth of the auction house.

Jesco von Puttkamer, the former expert in contemporary art and manager of our Munich office, will lead the company as Senior Director and Senior Specialist not only in Southern Germany, but also in Austria and Italy from now on.

With just 37 years of age, Moritz von der Heydte, who began his career at Sotheby's in London and has been the director of Artcurial Germany's Munich branch since Autumn 2015, will take over as head of the Grisebach representative office in Munich in March. This is a powerful addition for Grisebach in the south, as well as an expression of our confidence in the potential of the market and abundance of collectors and works of art in the region.
